

HEART DISEASE FROM ACUTE INDIGESTION OFTEN FATAL

How often we read of some one dying from heart disease as the result of acute indigestion after a heavy meal. Impaired digestion is very serious where the heart is weak, as undigested food ferments and produces gases that press against the heart, and if this organ is weakened by chronic stomach trouble there is grave danger of a fatal attack. Dr. Flood's Scientific Stomach Remedy removes the poisonous waste matter from the stomach and intestines, and interferes with digestion so that these dangerous gases do not form. If you have any kind of stomach or intestinal disorder do not put off restoring your health by commencing taking Dr. Flood's Scientific Stomach Remedy today and feel better tomorrow. This new treatment removes the cause of your trouble whereas ordinary dyspepsia tablets only treat the symptoms. Your money cheerfully refunded if it does not do all that we claim for it. Price $1.00. At all drug stores. If not, send to Dr. Flood Remedy Co., Chicago. Reduces substitutes. Recommended and sold by The Meyers Drug Co., 132 No. Main St., and other druggists. Adv.

WE ARE DYING TOO YOUNG

Thousands of Persons Claimed by Death Each Year—True Medical Talk—Local Specialist Claims Ninety-Eight Percent Could Be Cured If Treated in Time for Chronic Diseases.

How many die annually of chronic diseases, diseases which if diagnosed correctly, and treated in time, would save sufferers from many years of suffering and usefulness. This is a difficult question to answer, but it has been estimated that every year 35,000 people die of one chronic disease alone. Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Unaccounted thousands of others are claimed by death from liver diseases, stomach and bowel troubles, disorders of the heart, lungs, spine and other organs, and other kidney diseases. Probably not two per cent of this terrible death roll is really necessary.

Here a father dies just when life for himself and family seems brightest. There a mother's protecting and loving care is taken from her children just when they most need her guidance. Again, a young man at the very start of life, flung with the thought of the time to come, is snatched away by the grim reaper, leaving a void that can never be refilled in the home. Or a maiden, a flower which has just become full blown, withers and dies by the blighting effect of insidious disease. Truly death and disease is no respecter of persons.

Neglect? Yes, truly, in a way, for there is hardly a chronic disease which, if taken in its early stages, cannot be cured. Too little attention is paid by most people to nature's danger signals. Our bodies always give warnings when all is not well, and right then is the time to consult a skillful specialist before a minor trouble is allowed to go into the organic or incurable state. Pain in back, distress after eating, dizziness, weak and run down feeling, loss of appetite, torpid liver and digestive organs, continual headaches, difficulty in getting breath, becoming tired on exertion, unable to sleep well and naturally, irritated bladder, lack of former ambition and desire to work, nervousness, soreness of chest or abdomen, each of these symptoms is a red flag of danger meant to warn us of the breaking down of organs and the onward march of disease. We should take care of our health while we have it, and be warned in time when health shows signs of leaving us.

Dr. Bartlett, the specialist, whose offices are located on the second floor of the Toepf building, opposite the postoffice, bases his remarkable successes on two things. First, careful examination and diagnosis, for unless the underlying cause of disease is discovered no earthly treatment will prevail. The second point of success is the fact that his treatments consist of the best that can be culled from all systems of medicine, coupled with much knowledge gained by personal research and experience. This it is that enables him to successfully treat many cases after they have been pronounced incurable by others. He can refer you to hundreds of cured cases, many of them your neighbors and friends.

His examinations are at all times made free of charge, and your case will not be accepted until you can be benefited. Adv.

FIRST DOLLAR THAT I EVER EARNED.

BY HI SIBLEY.

GENE MILLER.

"Driving cows," said Gene Miller, briefly, anticipating my stereotyped question, "How did you earn your first dollar?"

"I had a sign of relief and handed him a cigar (figuratively). Here was a man who managed to get his start in life without planting corn. I regarded him in some awe."

"How did you manage to dodge the corned beef, anyway? Weren't you rather unconventional?" I inquired with a little curiosity.

"Well, in the first place we didn't have a corned beef. We had a corned beef. I had an idea when I did go out in the country to spend my vacation with a cousin, I arranged it so that I was excused from such jobs."

"And how did you accomplish that?" "Simply enough. One time I was out there when they needed all the help they could get, and I was pressed into service plowing. I had an idea I was a great help to them. I plowed half an acre after a fashion and was feeling pretty much puffed up over my work when my cousin came along and told me I had been plowing up all his potatoes. After that I was restricted to drawing water and sawing wood, and I think they kept their eyes on me when I did that."

"But the first real money I earned was driving cows. We lived then on N. Michigan st., and James Oliver's place was directly back of us on Main where the Casady place is now. I drove our cow to pasture every morning and took Oliver's cow along too. Mr. Oliver gave me a dollar a month for driving the cow, and 75 cents for the pasture. At home they gave me five cents a week—but of course I got my board too. You can't realize how big a dollar looked to me then."

"If it looked any bigger than it does at this particular time, it must have been a whopper."

Mr. Miller then went on to tell about the pair of skates he bought with his first money, and how he nearly got drowned, twice in one season.

"Those skates had straight runners with wooden bottoms," he continued, "with a strap for the toe and a screw for the heel. We took them off each time they had used them, because we didn't have any extra shoes for skating shoes, and when the screw hole in the heel got worn a little, it was hard to keep them on. But we had a lot of fun, just the same."

"Sometimes we skated on the mill race and other times over on the meadow—where the park is now. I broke through the ice a couple of times one winter. Once just above the head gates of the old Toy Works. Went under the first time and when I came up and tried to crawl out, the ice kept breaking and I probably wouldn't be here now if old man French hadn't shoved a plank out to me."

Edward Gruber said that he drank his wife's beer and got drunk. Chief Bunker asserted, however, that Gruber was troublesome to his family and neighbors and an old fine of $1 and costs, suspended several weeks ago, was held against him.

George T. Beck, it is alleged, bought some furnishings from a local dealer on the installment plan, missed one payment and went home to spend Christmas with his folks. The dealer remembered Beck had not made the usual payment and Beck was hustled away from the Christmas tree to spend the night with the sergeant at police station. He pleaded not guilty to a charge of larceny and trial was set for Saturday. A bond was set at $200.

Walter Jaskowiak had a young woman to entertain Christmas eve, but had no place to go. He borrowed a farmer's horse and buggy from a post near Ellsworth's store, went out to make a gallant call on the young woman and took her for a ride. When the farmer, Claude Sholly, returned from shopping trip the rig was gone. He waited around and Walter drove up with the young miss.

Claude rescued his rig and turned Walter over to an officer. In police court Walter declared he didn't mean to steal the outfit but just wanted a little ride. Trial was set for next week.

Joseph Hancz, with a record as a scrapper, was again found guilty of assault and battery. This time the victim was Jos Desits, a west end saloon keeper. Joseph just gave him a couple of punches in self defense, he asserted, when the crowd at the bar demanded that he "set 'em up." Joe said he shook dice and won a quarter and that Desits told him he had to buy drinks for the crowd with it. He refused and the bunch was going to make him when some one came. Joseph's old record looked bad against him and the judge fined him $5 and costs or 15 days indoors.

Miss Frankie Elston, teacher of the night school classes in the local schools has quit initiating South Bend girls into the mysteries of culinary art to take charge of her own household. Miss Elston's resignation is in the hands of the board of education and negotiations for a successor are going on. Miss Elston left her work at the beginning of the holiday vacation, to become the wife of Clarence Murray, of Chicago.

Night school classes at the high school and Laura school will resume Monday, as will also the regular high school classes. The ward schools, however, do not reopen until the Monday following.
